

What is Workplace Giving?

Workplace Giving means that people in Australia can give to the charities they care about as a pre-tax donation, directly from their pay.

Employees can nominate from $2 per month upwards, an amount that they would like to donate to their chosen charity. This deduction is taken from their salary pre-tax, which means no tax receipts are required at the end of the year for tax returns.

For employers, Workplace Giving is a way to demonstrate a commitment to corporate community investment. Employees are provided with an opportunity to connect with the values of the company they work for and an avenue to make a positive difference in society and the environment in the way that they choose.

Benefits of Workplace Giving

Every dollar donated goes towards giving more kids a fair go in life

$5 a week

can go towards granting school uniforms to a child living in disadvantage

$10 a week

can go towards granting nutritional feeds and nappies to kids living with Autism and Cystic Fibrosis

$20 a week

can go towards occupational therapy sessions for kids living with hearing and vision impairments

$30 a week

can go towards a wig for kids living with alopecia to give them increased self-esteem

$50 a week

can go towards equipment like a standing frame for a child with quadriplegic cerebral palsy
